

JUVENILES

Hobbies may produce results such as this bike which one student constructed to enter a local competition.

Sports activities provide opportunities for healthy competition.

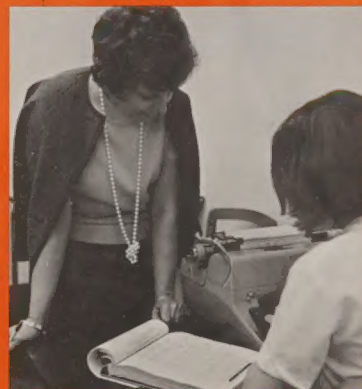

Hairdressing is a popular vocational course at girls' schools as well as giving every girl the opportunity to experiment with the latest hair styles.

Natural Resources personnel receive assistance from students in stocking local fishing streams.

Students are encouraged to read for pleasure and use library facilities for academic projects.

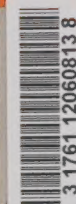

The program of academic and vocational studies is geared to each child's needs when he enters a training school and every attempt is made to provide a program that will hold his interest and stimulate learning.

ADULTS

In addition to teaching particular skills, instructors have the opportunity to develop a rapport with individual students.

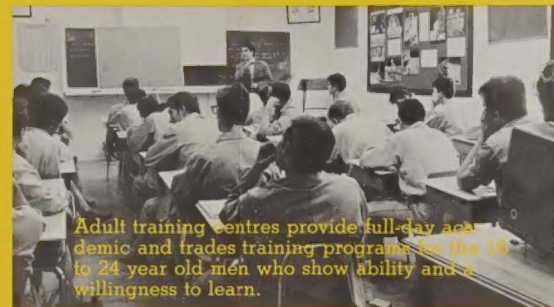

Trade training is constantly updated so that students will learn methods which are in current demand in the employment field.

Recreational activities, both indoor and outdoor, are a part of every institution's program.

Library facilities also provide study quarters for students attending community education courses under the Temporary Absence Program.

Adult training centres provide full-day academic and trades training programs for the 16 to 24 year old men who show ability and a willingness to learn.

Counseling involves staff as well as members of volunteer groups.

Adults serving sentences of less than two years are admitted to an Ontario correctional institution and take part in training and treatment programs suited to their individual needs.
